The mountains with their strength and constancy give a sense of God's presence in all of life. The expansiveness of the sky and the land, as far as the eye can see until the Earth and sky meet, leave one with wonder and awe at the majesty of all creation and the unfathomable goodness of the Creator. The demands and challenges of the desert and the surprising abundance of life and color in spring, fuels the heart and soul through the challenges of life with a deep trust in God's providence and hope that out of suffering, some good can come.

DEAR FRIENDS:

Time has proven that we have been strengthened by our New Mexico mission, but perhaps not in ways we anticipated.

Our Congregational story, as told in our self-published book, Period Pieces, supports our belief that there is indeed something “enchanted” about the people, culture, and place of New Mexico.

Ralph Lind

Early in 1925, nine decades ago, in a time long before email and overnight mail delivery, a German priest in New Mexico “heard about” our Congregation, visited Mother Benedicta and her Council, and invited them to consider service in the mission fields of New Mexico. That April Mother visited New Mexico, in May she announced her decision to the Sisters, and in July four Sisters began their journey to New Mexico to take up ministry there as teachers.

It is doubtful they anticipated the washed-out bridges and impassable roads that awaited them upon arrival (It must have been a winter like we had in Grand Rapids this year!), but as our Sisters continue to do today, they cheerfully accepted their mission and set out. A new adventure had begun; we were once again beckoned to “mission territory” that was as unknown in its time as the wilds of Traverse City were to our German immigrant Sisters.

The mission fields of New Mexico have enriched our Congregation in spirit, members, faith and finances more than we ever could have imagined. We encountered the holy in New Mexico and we will never be the same. Our collective experiences and transformation also affected those in Michigan and other parts of the world through a revitalized ministry now shaped by the missionary encounters in New Mexico.

Likewise, our decades of service shaping young lives at Marywood Academy and many other schools have borne fruit beyond our imagining. Untold lives have been enriched by our teaching and now by the compassionate service of those we once taught. We once again welcome our Academy alumnae this May for Homecoming.

We each serve in a ministry of presence to everyone we encounter. These blessed encounters widen our tent. We are grateful for the call to New Mexico, and we are grateful for you, our friends and benefactors. We say to you “Vaya con Dios” – not farewell, but “Go with God” – in each and every moment and encounter of your life. Know that you have blessed our lives. We hope to see you soon!

With the warmth and spirituality of the Land of Enchantment,

A ministry of presence in New Mexico

Since 1925, well over 400 Grand Rapids Dominican Sisters have served in ministries throughout New Mexico, and scores of Sisters with family roots in New Mexico have served God's people in Michigan and elsewhere.

Most of the Sisters living and working in New Mexico today were born there and have families in the region. They were drawn by the example of a previous generation of Dominicans to join our Congregation. For all the Sisters called to or from the Land of Enchantment, it is their love of New Mexico that keeps them ministering there.

"We are finding out who we can become as we grow deeper in love with the people of New Mexico and with God. That is why we are there," says Sandra Delgado, OP, a member of the current Dominican Sisters Leadership Team based in Grand Rapids.

Changing Need

The Sisters' roles in New Mexico, as elsewhere in the world, have evolved over the past few decades. "As the needs of society changed, we were always there, ready to see what was needed and what gifts were called for," says Eva Silva, OP, MA, LPCC, a psychotherapist in private practice in Albuquerque, just 30 miles from her hometown of Belen. "As the need for Sisters as teachers and nurses reduced, we were called to work in parishes and many other professions. We recognized that there was a whole world that we wanted to explore."

Sister Carmella Conway's newly constructed 8th grade classroom in Santa Cruz after the Dixon Case in 1950.

Ann Thielen, OP, originally from Bay City, Michigan, was called to New Mexico several times over the years, serving as a nurse and later a parish life coordinator. Today, she volunteers with the Women's Housing Coalition and St. Vincent de Paul Services in Albuquerque. Whereas in New Mexico we used to serve elbow-to-elbow with many other Sisters at schools and hospitals "...we are all individual in our work now," says Sister Ann.

These important and much needed ministries are still energized and enriched by our communal identity and interaction as Grand Rapids Dominicans. In fact, communal support may be more important than ever as we seek to respond to the many and diverse pleas for help that come our way. And, our more recent experience of ministry calls us into profound partnership with other laity, as well as clergy, in the service of God's people.

Teachers without a School

Originally, the Dominican Sisters were called to New Mexico to meet the need for teachers in remote regions. "In the 1920s, the Sisters became educators at the missions in Peñasco and Dixon. The impact that these early Sisters made in the northern part of New Mexico was important to those communities," says Dolorita Martinez, OP, a former teacher and parish pastoral coordinator whose career has always involved making effective bilingual connections and who now volunteers in an Albuquerque parish.

Ralph Lind

The Dominican influence flourished beyond the initial summons. “There were no high schools in the north, so the Sisters started one,” says Sister Dolorita. Other small towns in New Mexico delighted in the arrival and service of more Sisters who were sent to New Mexico, and vocations flourished among the young women we served.

By the late 1940s many Sisters were teaching in what were actually public schools, with most faculty from religious congregations. Eventually, a group challenged the local school board’s mandate that closed the local public school and required children in the town of Dixon to attend the Catholic school in town. The result of Zellers v. Huff, or the Dixon Case, pulled many of the Dominican Sisters, and other Sisters teaching in New Mexico, from their jobs in public schools statewide.

Many rural areas rallied and formed their own parish schools, asking the Sisters to step in and run them. “When the Sisters were put out of the public schools, I was in 7th grade. But, our community built a Catholic school out of the corrals that we had for the horses just in time for the next school year to begin,” recalls Therese Rodriguez, OP, a former chaplain who is a pastoral ministry volunteer at University of New Mexico Hospital in Albuquerque.

The Roots of Current Ventures in Health Care

Recent changes on our Marywood campus to embrace new ministries of skilled nursing and residential care are well grounded in our experiences in New Mexico (and California). Our work at the Nazareth Sanatorium in Albuquerque began soon after our arrival in New Mexico.

In its early years it served as a place for care and respite for patients with tuberculosis. By the late 1940s it was transformed into a psychiatric care facility and the hospital also served as a school for the training of registered nurses in psychiatric care. This was followed by Congregational ministry of administration and care in two hospitals in California and one in Santa Rosa, New Mexico, and still later by our maternity and health services in Chimbote, Peru. The Word of God is also preached through the healing miracles of Jesus, and our provision of compassionate care.

Influenced by the Landscape

Everyone who journeys to New Mexico is struck by the abundance of sunshine and drawn into the big sky that surrounds them. This is the perfect backdrop for our community, especially considering that Care of Earth is one of our Direction Statements.

“I think we are very much influenced by the landscape in which we live. We have huge open blue skies that move your soul. We have mountains that are always present and beautiful. We have sun all the time, even when it is raining,” says Sister Eva. “Those experiences affect us and impact us in ways that we don’t even realize.”

In the 1920s, the Congregation acquired, through a gift and a savvy purchase, land in New Mexico including an area that was later fondly referred to as “the gravel pit.” This land held abundant saleable mineral and water resources and through effective management has provided for the Sisters over the years.

The Sisters mandate in all sales agreements that land they once owned cannot be used for the research, development, production, or deployment of weapons. It is a condition that preserves our legacy of commitment to Care of Earth and perhaps encourages others to be more thoughtful about land use. Such a stipulation was in place in the 1980s when we sold the gravel pit to the City of Albuquerque, creating what is now the home for Albuquerque’s International Balloon Festival.

“When we were looking to sell that land we were specific about whoever the buyer would be, that it would not be used in any way related to anything to do harm,” says Sister Eva. “So when the city bought it for the International Balloon Festival we were happy that it was for something so family oriented.”

“To see those balloons out there in the air with all of those colors... your spirit just lifts,” says Sister Ann. “The Festival has grown since the city bought the land. It’s been wonderful for everyone here.” Like our ministry, it lifts people up.

Going Where the Need Takes Us; Our Presence Today

True daughters of Dominic, the Sisters in New Mexico have never shirked from meeting whatever new challenge comes their way. Our Sisters continue providing their ministry of presence in a wide variety of work and volunteer roles, providing constancy and presence in New Mexico. They do so with the warmth and energy of the desert itself.

Ada Medina-Dominguez, OP, MA, is assistant principal at an Albuquerque public school that serves 706 elementary school children. “Many of the children know that I’m a nun. People accept it. They value my presence here,” says Sister Ada. “The children do talk to me about things, but my ministry to them is by my actions. I try to be kind to them, to be caring, to help in any way that I can.”

Ralph Lind

Sister Eileen Jaramillo uses her role as teacher in a military academy to provide an example of peace with her presence.

As an English instructor in a military academy serving students in grades 8-12, Eileen Jaramillo, OP, also has the title of Ensign, United States Naval Sea Cadet Corp. Sister Eileen has found balance between her religious vows and the disciplined commitment to the education of the whole student that is fostered by the school. “I often tell people that I am not there to promote war, but hopefully peace in whatever way the Lord leads me and directs me,” says Sister

Eileen. “I try to be an example.”

“During my job interview, the Commodore of the school asked me if I had any military training. Well, no I don’t, but I told him that I was convent-trained,” says Sister Eileen, chuckling over the memory. “He was laughing so hard, he about fell out of his chair.

Then he told me, ‘I think we’ve got you hired!’”

Volunteer ministry in parishes, hospitals and social service agencies also put us in contact today with individuals and families who are homeless or hungry, with liturgical music and the beauty of worship space, with the accompaniment of women, with religious education for children and adults, and with patients at hospitals and VA centers.

“My journey has evolved. If you look at every individual’s professional journey, one experience of ministry reaches to the next,” says Sister Eva. “Sometimes someone opens doors for us, or perhaps there is a need that is not being met.”

“In New Mexico, our Dominican presence has helped other people live better lives. That is the best I can hope for. Not just as a Dominican, but as a human person,” says Sister Ada. “My hope is that I’ve made a difference in people’s lives wherever I am.”

“Powerhouse,” is how Sister Eva describes being a Dominican Sister in her home state of New Mexico. “I am surrounded by this powerhouse of women who assist me in my presence to others.”

Crossing Cultures ~ The Dominican Way

Melding cultures has been a lifelong undertaking for our Congregation, especially when delving into the relationship between the Sisters from New Mexico and those from the Midwest and elsewhere.

FINDING COMMON GROUND

From New Mexico, young women did not arrive in Michigan as tourists, but to enter a way of life as Dominicans. They temporarily left behind their families, as well as a culture that encompassed them, in order to take on the life of vowed women religious.

Another group of Sisters, those who were born and bred in Michigan or at least formed in the cultures of our Midwest Congregation, were sent to teach and nurse in New Mexico. And so, a wonderful exchange of cultures emerged within the Dominican community. A deep reverence for diverse ways of praying, celebrating, and caring for one another evolved into a unique integration of cultures among the Dominican Sisters from such disparate locations.

So many brave young women who crossed the country to study and become Dominican in the Midwest, as well as those sent to New Mexico on mission, encountered cultural climates that were dramatically different from what they knew. These women faced the fear and uncertainty inherent in such a monumental life change with courage and dignity. The culture of the Sisters from the Midwest was influenced by immigrant families from Ireland, Germany, Italy, Poland, and Canada; while the culture of the Sisters from New Mexico was influenced by Spanish, Mexican, and Indigenous heritage. Considering that a person's culture influences how she/he perceives the world and responds to it, these women indeed faced new challenges.

And yet, there were affinities between the cultural backgrounds of the Sisters. "The concept of extended family and the close family relationships is a value we shared with our Dominican Sisters from across the country," says Dolorita Martinez, OP, a native of New Mexico. "We grew up practicing many of the same Roman Catholic traditions and attending Mass on Sundays, celebrating and following similar rituals. Family prayer played a very important role among all of us, shaping us and guiding our views and way of living."

"Culture is what a group of human beings share: customs, values, and distinct ways of living."

~ Alward Shorter

Sharing their musical talents at Dominican Days in 1988 are (L-R): Mrs. Silva, Sister Bernice Garcia, Sister Charlotte Mondragon, Sister Eva Silva, Mr. Silva, and Sister Eileen Jaramillo.

New Mexico's stark natural elements and the beauty of the land are embedded in the hearts of the people who call it home. "I come from the open spaces of Northern New Mexico – both the desert and the mountain areas," says Sister Dolorita. "I believe that the rich silence and quiet of these open spaces gave me sensitivity to nature and helped me see and touch life in a contemplative way, all strengthening my prayer life."

"I like going to the mountains, but in Michigan I loved going to Lake Michigan," says Ann Thielen, OP, originally from Michigan, now living in New Mexico. Sister Ann first came to New Mexico in the 1960s on mission assignment as a nurse and wondered about where she could find the green landscape she grew up with in Michigan. Today she sees the beauty in both her adopted home of New Mexico and her native state of Michigan equally. "I like the open spaces," says Sister Ann. "I think it is an individual thing based on where you are at the moment."

While all Dominican Sisters share a deep love for natural resources and gifts of nature, the Great Lakes and farm lands of Michigan are vastly different from the desert and mountains of New Mexico. In much the same way that the views from their windows were greatly different for the Sisters, so were many cultural aspects. Foods were unfamiliar as were the ways the Sisters prayed and celebrated. Each difference challenged the Sisters who found themselves enveloped in a culture and community that was unfamiliar.

BECOMING DOMINICAN

Sisters from New Mexico came mostly from rural or small towns, not unlike the majority of Sisters from the Midwest. Although quite distinct, there was a natural weaving and connection of this common background. One truly illustrative moment, although there were likely many that took place over the years, is described in a manuscript about the history of the Sisters.

*It happened...during the Dominican Gathering Days in Grand Rapids. It was a real fiesta with music and dancing and food. Something palpable happened that day; two language groups became acutely aware of the gift of the other. Nuevo Mejico met in the land of the Great Lakes and it was joy, esteem, appreciation all around. It was a new moment in the Congregation for all of the Sisters. The notion of family grew and together the Sisters could say: "¡Vive la fiesta!"

There is a continuous transformation taking place with two rich cultures blending into one – the culture of being Dominican. Our Sisters are tied together with a common understanding of expressing our Dominican selves in all we are and embracing one another and our unique cultural backgrounds.

A Peek at Our New Mexico Art Collection

Many of the pieces in the Dominican Sisters' New Mexico art collection have a delightful history to share. The archives brim with the background and explanations for much of this art.

Such is the case with the Storyteller Doll crafted by Theresa Fresquez Ortiz. Lucille Leannah, OP (†) received this doll when she retired from teaching in Santa Cruz, New Mexico, in 1998. The piece features one large figure with 24 smaller figures attached all over. It symbolizes a mother with her children or a teacher with her students. This was a fitting gift from the community that Sister Lucille spent the majority of her life serving. The Storyteller Doll is now housed in the Legacy Room on the Marywood Campus for all to enjoy.

Other pieces in the collection, while admired by the Sisters and our guests, have origins that today are a mystery. We may know the artist's name but have no record of how the gift came to us or vice versa. Regardless, all the artwork in our care reminds us of the many lives we've touched with our ministries in New Mexico and beyond.

- Matthew Bergevin, Story and Photos

Michael Ellen Carling, OP

Sister Lucille Leannah's retirement gift from the teachers and students in Santa Cruz represents the theme of empowered mother figures. Now located in the Legacy Room, just outside Dominican Chapel/Marywood.

Francisca McGinn, OP

Dominican Sisters including Sister Emilia Atencio ministered at San Francisco de Asis in Taos, New Mexico for several years. It is a National Historic Landmark and a World Heritage Church. It is the inspiration for many paintings by Georgia O'Keefe.

This wooden carving of St. Francis was a gift from artist Isaac Lomero, a former student of the Dominican Sisters.

An image in the Basilica of Our Lady of Guadalupe in Mexico City inspired this hand-carved wood statue of the Virgin Mary. It was a gift from the teachers and families of Navajo Elementary School to thank Sister Ada Dominguez for her help over the years. Our Congregation assisted the school to meet many needs, such as school uniforms and books for a new library. The sculpture resides on the balcony of the Chapel of the Word in the Marywood Health Center.

Given to the Sisters in thanks for a grant by artist Jerry Geronimo. The Madre sculpture represents a Sister in prayer. This piece resides at the entrance way (the Narthex) of Dominican Chapel/Marywood.

Handcrafted placemat by Sister Emilia Atencio while on mission in Española, New Mexico.

Helping Our Legacy Grow

Our home, this Marywood Campus, has been a work in progress since our arrival in Grand Rapids in 1889. It has changed over time, just as our Congregation and ministries have. We are blessed with a campus that allows us to be responsive to the changing needs of our Sisters and the community around us.

– Sister Maureen Geary, Prioress, Dominican Sisters ~ Grand Rapids

In 2010 a small group of friends began asking questions about the current needs of our Sisters, our ministries, and our campus facilities, and began work on a funding plan. Two years later, this small group grew into a large volunteer campaign cabinet, with a goal of raising $6 million to renovate two buildings, expand our healthcare ministry and outreach, and support the living and lasting legacy of the Dominican Sisters and their ministry to God's people. We are delighted to bring you this update on the Marywood Legacy Campaign.

PHASE I – Funding the Present

Today we have met our initial $4 million goal for Phase I of our campaign. Thanks are due to the initial team that helped secure a $1 million gift from the Wege Foundation, later enhanced by a $500,000 challenge grant from the Foundation – the largest gift the Congregation has ever received. We also owe thanks to our campaign cabinet for the hard work that followed, allowing us to reach our Phase I goal. And, of course, we offer our infinite gratitude to our generous donors who are mentioned on pages 29-31 of this magazine.

The Aquinata Hall and Marywood Health Center renovations and the start-up of Marywood Home Health have all been completed; their operations are underway; and the Congregation's "present" work of service has been greatly enhanced by these renovated buildings and new partnerships with Porter Hills. We are building on a strong legacy of ministry in West Michigan!

PHASE II – Funding the Future

Phase II is the final $2 million of our comprehensive campaign goal, and is identified for future strategic planning. We are very pleased to announce that we have already raised nearly $500,000, including a new $250,000 incentive match from an anonymous donor, toward this Phase II goal.

In Phase II we will look at the campus as a whole. The shape of this planning process will include:

- Continued visioning of Marywood Campus for the Sisters' life and mission
- Opportunities for enhanced programming and services
- Deep reflection and study by the Sisters as they envision new ministries and sustainable use of facilities and grounds
- A collaborative process to invite dialogue and innovative ideas from the wider West Michigan community and others who support the Dominican Sisters' mission
- Commitment to future directions that allow the Marywood campus to flourish as a vital and vibrant community resource

Coming Home to Marywood

“I grew up at Marywood. I always tell people that I’m not American, I’m Dominican,” says Katie Cuncannan, class of 1957. “Visiting the campus is still a sense of coming home; it is still a sense of security.”

Katie and alumnae from Marywood Academy will come home again the weekend of May 16-17. A dedicated alumnae planning committee has mailed Homecoming invitations, but they know that they don’t have a complete list and urge other women to help reach out to classmates with personal invitations to Homecoming 2014.

of 1965 and Homecoming planning chairwoman. “We had a special friendship.”

Mary looks forward to reconnecting with the other women who shared so much with her during their school years. In addition, just being on campus is a treasured nostalgic journey. “It is nice because we come back to a place that is so familiar. Some of our activities take place in the cafeteria where we used to have our lunches” says Mary. “It is fun to come back!”

Some Homecoming traditions transport the alumnae back in time. “We could buy anise-flavored suckers for 25 cents in the cafeteria during our school days,” says Terri Handlin, class of 1963. “Alumna Sylvia Cinder Stockdale now makes them for Homecoming. What a fun remembrance!”

The shared remembrances, both playful and more serious, are all meaningful. “We were all there when Kennedy was shot. That was traumatic. The principal came over the PA and asked that we all stop and kneel down and pray. Of course we all did,” says Mary. “We were all pretty scared.”

Katie laughs as she shares a memory of some of the antics she experienced while a boarding student at Marywood. “My mother called me boy crazy. I do remember boys that we met on weekends at dances driving around the front circle and beeping, trying to get us in trouble.”

“It was pretty strict. If there was some suspicion that your uniform was a little too short, you had to kneel down on the marble floor and if your skirt didn’t touch the floor... it was too short,” remembers Mary. “But, most importantly, there was an awful lot of love there.”

Come home again this May and reconnect with Marywood, the Dominican Sisters, and other alumnae. “My favorite part is always seeing the women who attend,” says Terri. “There is always somebody who wears her old beanie or jacket. I wonder who it will be this year?”

ABOUT US

The Dominican Sisters ~ Grand Rapids are a community of vowed women religious who follow the Roman Catholic traditions of St. Dominic and St. Catherine of Siena. Since 1877, we have taught children and ministered to the orphaned, partnered with nonprofit agencies, and served in hospital ministries, social service agencies and hospice care. We have created works of art, helped lead liturgical reform, and fostered life in parishes and communities. Today, based on the Marywood Campus in Grand Rapids, Michigan, we engage in a wide variety of ministries throughout the United States and missions in Peru and Honduras.

PREFER A DIGITAL COPY?

In keeping with our commitment to Care of Earth, we invite you to begin receiving Mission & Ministry magazine digitally. Simply email rmgoeldel@grdominicans.org your preferred email address for receipt of the magazine link. We will remove your name from our mailing list for the magazine and send you only the digital version.

If you prefer to continue receiving a hard copy of the magazine in your mail box, that is fine as well. We continue to take steps to print in a conscientious manner, using vegetable-based ink on paper that is FSC® Certified. This means that the forests used to harvest the paper are well managed with an environmentally conscious approach.
